TEXANS WORKING FOR IRRIGATION MEET

Swinehart Wants Big Attendance and Exhibit at Pueblo.

Pecos, Tex., June 14.—Will L. Sargent, honorary vice president of the National Irrigation congress, has been in Pecos conferring with M. L. Swinehart, president of the Texas Irrigation congress, and chairman of the committee appointed by governor Campbell to represent the state of Texas at the 13th National Irrigation congress to be held in Pueblo, Colo., September 28 to 30. Plans have been made for collecting products from the irrigated sections of the state to be exhibited at the meeting. It is also planned to secure the appointment of at least 200 delegates from over the state who will pledge themselves to attend.

In an interview Mr. Swinehart said: "If the plans of the Texas Irrigation congress acting in harmony with the state representatives of the national organization are successful, we will have a representation at this meeting, both of delegates and farm products, that will be a credit to the state. One reason for making an especial effort to secure the attendance of a large representation from Texas is that the meeting for 1911 may be secured for this state. Already some of the cities, especially Dallas, El Paso and San Antonio, are bidding for this convention and making inquiries as to what will be required of them to secure it. Our delegation is out for this convention and that practically means that we will get it."

Before leaving for his home at Fort Worth, Mr. Sargent said: "I do not believe the people of Texas can secure more recognition or better advertisement for the products of their irrigated districts than by sending an exhibit to the Irrigation congress at Pueblo, Colo., in September."

"There will be over 4000 delegates in attendance at this meeting and the fact that they are all interested in irrigation and products from irrigated sections insures the most careful inspection of these exhibits. From correspondence already had with outlying states, who would have no chance of securing this convention for themselves, I believe we will succeed in securing this meeting for Texas."

DEPARTMENT STORE FOR SOASH

The Man Who Made the Town, Visits El Paso En Route to Panhandle.

W. P. Soash and J. A. Townsley, his advertising manager, were in El Paso Monday enroute to Amarillo and other points in the Panhandle country on business. Mr. Soash is the man who has established a town on the Texas plains near Big Springs, where he has built up a young city, where cattle roamed less than two years ago.

He is just now preparing to put in a department store in the new town, which he has adopted as his own home.

and this will be one of the biggest institutions in west Texas.

The new department store which Mr. Soash is establishing will occupy a large building 44x57 feet, with basement. Work on the structure started Saturday morning, contractor J. J. Hise-rodt putting a large force of workmen on the building, and it will be completed by the time the stocks begin to arrive.

The building will cost $5000 and will be modern in every way. The plans and specifications call for a modern front, constructed in such manner that goods can be displayed in an attractive manner, and at the same time the building will be splendidly lighted by the prism windows just over the display windows.

Plumbing will carry water all through the big store and the large new electric light plant at Soash, recently installed to take the place of the one the town has outgrown, will enable Mr. Soash to put 14 large arc lights in the main salesroom. These lights, together with the large clusters in the display windows, will give to the town of Soash a daylight store at all times. No town in the southwest will be able to boast of a larger, better or more convenient and elegant store than this new place will be when it is completed, Mr. Soash declares.

Mr. Soash states that he has already purchased complete stocks for the various departments, the initial order amounting to over $35,000. The goods will be installed as soon as the fixtures can be placed, and an effort made to begin business about July 1.

This move on the part of Mr. Soash shows conclusively his faith in west Texas. In addition to the large amount of capital that he has invested in the various branches of his land and town lot business, Mr. Soash now feels able and anxious to invest more. This new store represents $30,000, and the new home which he is building at Soash represents another $10,000.

Many Herald readers are familiar with this man's operations, yet few are aware of the great impetus and forward movement his coming to the Big Springs country has inaugurated.

There is a demand for such a big business concern, Mr. Soash declares, or he would be the last man to launch it. That it will be a success nobody doubts, for he has no failure in his long line of business investments in Texas and many northern states. He does not wait until opportunity comes and visits him but creates the situation.

MEDALS FOR FAIR HAVE BEEN DELAYED

Have Been Ordered; Jeweler Says They Are Now Being Made.

The order for the medals was given to A. H. Richards, who stated Monday that the medals had been ordered for some time but have not yet been delivered. He said they were expected at any time and would be sent out as soon as they arrived.

SEVEN SETS OF CHILDREN AND WIDOW WANT MAN'S ESTATE
Fort Worth, Tex., June 14.—To settle a valuable estate, including extensive tracts of land in Tarrant county, suit was filed here this morning involving the rights of seven sets of children and one widow. The estate is that of J. I. Wright, prominent in this county for years, who died after having been married seven times.

THE QUARANTINE SITUATION.
Since no developments of smallpox have been reported to Juarez officials, there will be no re-quarantine of the vaccination certificate quarantine on entering Mexico. However, the requirement on the part of El Paso authorities at both bridges makes no change in the condition as regards intercity traffic.

PRISONER ONE DAY; POLICEMAN THE NEXT DAY

Man Incarcerated in Juarez Is Released and Made an Officer.

That everything comes to him who waits—even to freedom from a Mexican jail—is true in the case of Jesus Saens, the man who works. Without an atom of political pull, without a single friend of power, the man has received a pardon from governor Sanchez of Chihuahua and no longer is a "trustee" prisoner in Ciudad Juarez.

The case would be unique in the United States. But in a land where sentiment—perhaps sentimentality—governs to no small extent, it is not uncommon. What Jesus Saens is charged to have done is nothing in import to what Jesus Saens is doing. So through this Latin attitude has been reached the cardinal life of twentieth century criminology—study of the criminal, not study of the crime.

Convicted of a Stabbing.

This man Saens was convicted of knifing a fellow, and sentenced to serve four years. He never confessed nor complained. Instead he went to work and has been working for two years. A few months ago he was released as a "trustee," given his liberty and soon became a trusted errand man among the officials of the Mexican city. His fidelity was unswerving. Yet, Saens was no slave of labor. He always had been a well paid workman, because of a more than ordinary intelligence.

So well did Saens serve in his humble capacity as errand man, so appreciative was he for his liberty, for which he never pleaded except by his work, that the case was called to the attention of the governor, Ponce de Leon, commander of police, who caused the corporal freedom of the man, had taken the first step. And now governor Sanchez has completed the breach, and Saens is a free man. He has received two years of freedom as a present.

Now a Policeman.
But at such a point the "jail bird" usually finds his gravest trouble. He is not assisted by employers, is shunned by fellow workmen. So, Saens has been retained as a member of the Juarez police force. He is not a policeman with the power to arrest, but he is a sort of special deputy, whose duty it is to do important errands, and to assist in the secret branch of the service. Otherwise he receives his pay with the other policemen, and he is one of them.

Whether Jesus Saens once killed a man with a knife makes no difference now. The fact that he was so convicted does not matter. It is only of interest that Saens is a faithful animal with the brain of a man; that he is one man in a thousand who does one thing until it is finished; that he is a man who works for the mere reward of doing more work. Such men would probably not long remain in jail anywhere. They are too rare.

"JACKPOT" EVIDENCE IN BROWNE CASE RULED OUT

Chicago, Ill., June 14.—The first day of the trial before Judge McSherry, of Lee O'Neill Browne, legislative minority leader, charged with bribery in connection with the election of William Lermier to the United States senate, resulted in a partial victory for Browne's counsel.

Despite vehement protests by state's attorney Wayman, and although he allowed the subject to be reopened, for further argument during the afternoon, the judge finally declared that the so-called "jackpot" evidence in the case—evidence recounting occurrences at a meeting of Illinois legislators in a St. Louis hotel, must be ruled out.

Judge McSherry said that he could see no relevancy in the alleged St. Louis transactions, because no specific agreement for the election of United States senator was made there.

C., June 14.—Senator Dolliver answered the critics of the insurgents Monday in a speech delivered in the senate during the discussion of provision of the sundry civil appropriation bill providing $250,000 to enable the president to gather information bearing upon the operation of the new tariff law.

Dolliver declared there was no longer any freedom of conscience or of opinion such as had once made the Republican party strong. Referring briefly to speaker Cannon's declaration "that the insurgents should be hanged," he declared it was evident that men entering congress must become either under-studies or Ishmaelites.
